Kellam finishes training

Airman Mark D. Kellam, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Kellam of Route 2, Appomattox, Va., has been assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

Use caution when removing snow

RICHMOND--If not done properly, the simple task of shoveling snow this winter may prove hazardous, or even fatal, to some Virginians--especially men over 40, according to Blue Cross and Blue Shield's fitness coordinator, John H. Bates.

"Shoveling snow is really a very strenuous activity. It puts tremendous sudden pressure on the heart and cardivascular system, demanding from 6 to 15 times the energy used by the resting heart," said Bates, an exercise physiologist. He noted that those in the most danger are people with high pressure and or undiagnosed coronary heart disease.

Bates said that in the Chicago-area last winter, 40 persons died in just one day from the over-exertion involved in snow removal. Many others who weren't up to the task because of their unconditional muscles and weak cardiovascular systems suffered minor injuries, stiffness and soreness, and low back pain.

"A snow needn't be deep for shoveling to be dangerous," Bates commented. "Even removing an inch or two of snow can prove fatal. And it isn't the shoveling itself that is the problem. It is the way we go about it."

Bates explained that most people try to do too much too quickly, too fast shoveling great mounds of snow and working very quickly. "The combination of heavy snow and rapid working pace puts a great strain on our system--especially when we are not in condition."

The Blue Cross and Blue Shield fitness specialist recommended some precautionary measures that can reduce the dangers associated with snow shoveling.

1. Use a short shovel, with a small scoop.

2. Lift small loads, not large ones; don't fill the scoop completely as you shovel.

3. Warm-up slowly and then pace yourself; stop to rest often before you feel tired.

4. Dress warmly but don't overdo it; too many layers of clothes work to trap body heat, placing still more strain on your cardivascular system.

Bates emphasized that people with high blood pressure suffer from angina, or are otherwise a high risk for heart attacks should not shovel snow under any circumstances.

According to Bates, women are more often more fit than men for snow shoveling. For one thing women have some natural protection against heart attack.

"Women often are in better physical condition than men, too," Bates continued, noting that this is an part a consequence of the work that women do to keep their homes." Men are often disdainful of such household activities as sweeping, mopping, and vacuuming because they don't fit with the traditional 'macho male' image', he said. However such activities actually help strengthen the arm and back muscles, and the fact that women are left to do these things contributes to the superior conditioning that many women enjoy. Men who want to get in shape would do well to pitch in and help with household chores especially if they spend their days sitting at a desk.

Bates concluded, "We all need to become more physically fit. If you're not in shape this winter, start now to become more physically fit. If you're not in shape now start now to get yourself in condition.

UDC observes birthdays of CSA leaders

By MRS. TILDEN LEE

The birthdays of Robert E. Lee, Stonewall Jackson and Matthew Maury were observed at the luncheon meeting of the Appomattox Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy on Thursday, Jan. 15 at Maude's Restaurant.

Mrs. Lucille Ferrell, chapter historian spoke to the 15 members and guests on Matthew Fontaine. Maury who was born January 14 near Fredericksburg, a midshipman in the U. S. Navy at age 19, who became interested in the weather, standing watch on deck at night he became interested in the stars, studied the tides and air current and their effects on sailing vessels. Later he wrote an article entitled, "On The Navigation of Cape Horn", also his book, "A New Theoretivse and Practical Treatise on Navigation".

On April 20, 1861 he went to Richmond to offer his services in the defense of the state. Maury had no small mind, no narrow prejudices, and no private bitterness had held him from the pursuit of truth. He was called "The Pathfinder of the Sea".

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Hazel Lee Martin, president. Mrs. Tilden Lee led the group in Pledge to the United States Flag. Mrs. Mary Moore led in salutes to the Virginia Flag, and Mrs. Elaine Moore led in salutes to the Confederate Flag.

The ritual was given by Mrs. Martin and the Confederate Prayer by Mrs. Gladys Johnson.

Mrs. Martin extended the invitation to chapter members to meet at her home on Wednesday, Feb. 19 at 12 o'clock noon for a covered dish lunch.
